

Dear Heritage,

Around 6 months ago, The Patriot Post reported on an additional week of Spring Break added in after students from trips across the country were directed back. I remember calling it “breaking news” and “a blessing in disguise.” At the time, it seemed like just some extra vacation time. Then the additional week turned into Google Meets and global infection. I didn’t realize “normal” was a word I would look on fondly. That’s in the past now. Our old normal, our old world, is what we can read in history. The Patriot Post urges you to look forward into the future. Although there are a lot of question marks as we tread through these weeks, we have each other to lean on (6-feet apart, of course) as we embrace our new normal.

Virtual hugs and in-person elbow bumps,

Bella Ramirez

Editorial Policy

The Patriot Post limits opinion to opinion articles, columns and editorials. All editorials reflect the majority opinion of the staff. Opinions detailed in this publication do not necessarily reflect the views of administration, faculty or the student body. At our own discretion, we will publish letters to the editor either in print or online at ipatriotpost.com. We reserve the right to edit these letters for grammar and layout restrictions and will not publish any content we deem libelous to any students, faculty or members of the community.

LOOKING FORWARD: Dr. Jonathan Pedrone, American Government teacher, teaches class from a podium in a plexiglass enclosure. Since the class is not discussion-based, he keeps the voice-enhancing mic as the main audio source for online students; this means any before class chatter from in-person students is not heard by online students.
